Our friends are getting older and wrinkly. Our friends, well, their hair is turning grey

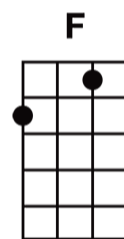

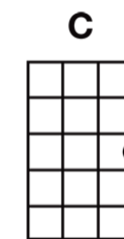

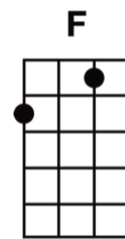

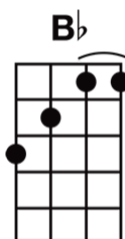

Their bodies have transformed, from a sports car to a bus. I'm glad that won't happen t

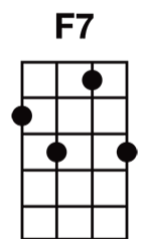

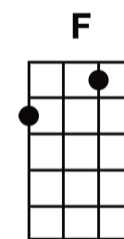

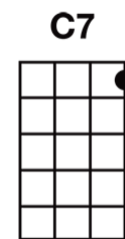

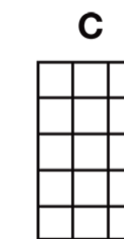

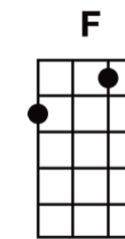

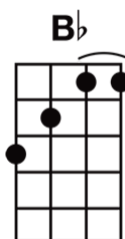

The years, they can age you and fill you with grief.

Your joints get all creaky, and you lose all your teeth

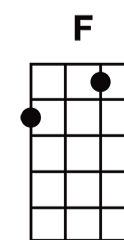

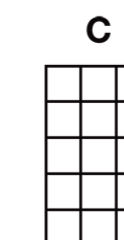

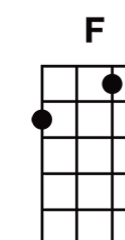

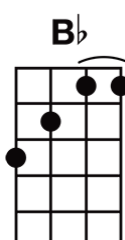

You won't go down the stairs, 'cause they're just too dangerous.

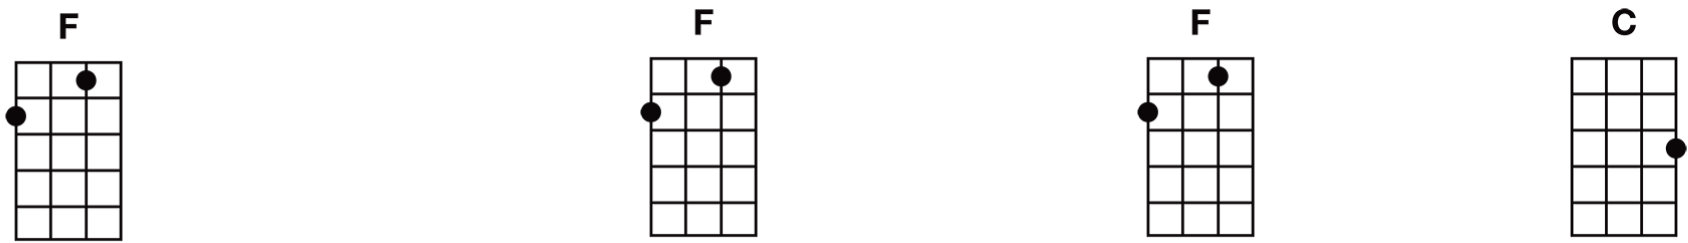

I'm glad that won't hap

I'm glad that won't happen to us. We're watching our calories, eating kale and asparagus

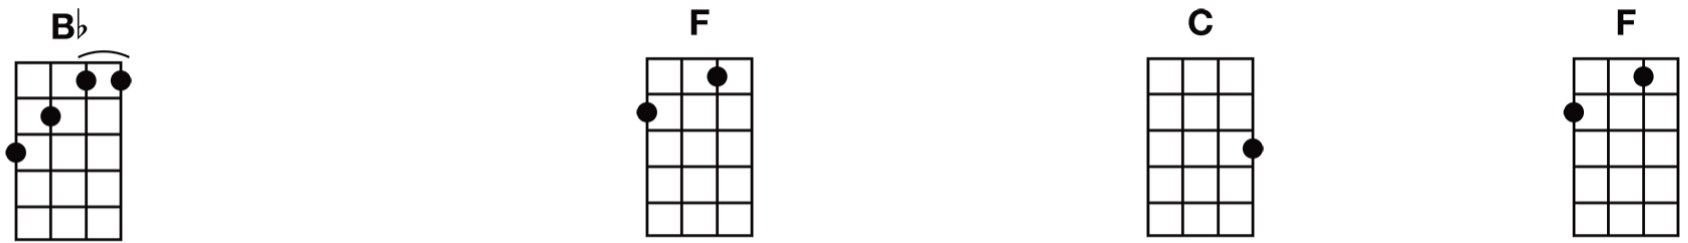

We're doing Pilates, and we don't ever cuss, So that stuff won't happen to us!

We look in the mirror, and we see we look the same

As when we were twenty, before these aches and pains

All our friends keep getting older, but we look marvelous. I'm glad that won't happen to us

(instrumental)

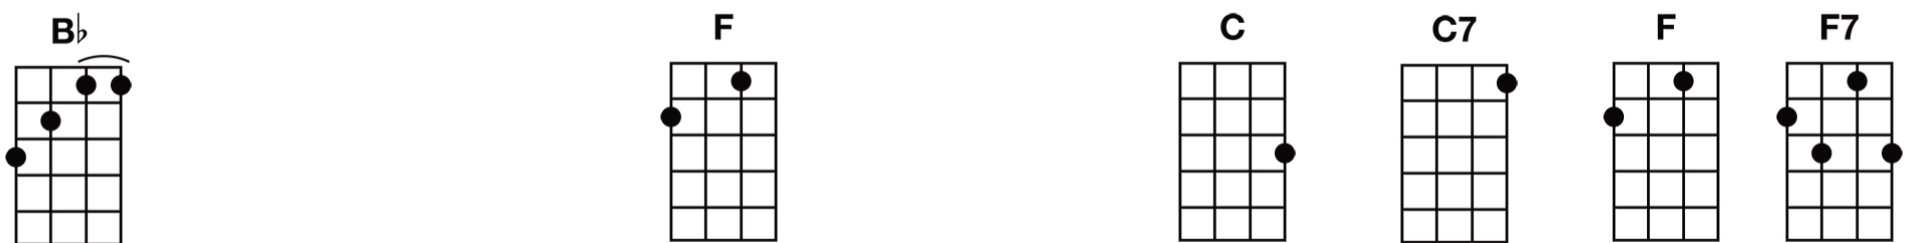

Our friends have grown forgetful and repeat themselves all day

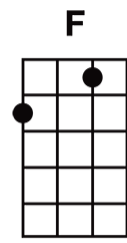

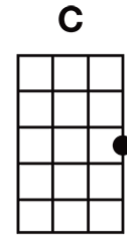

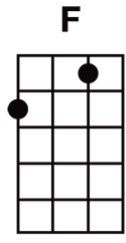

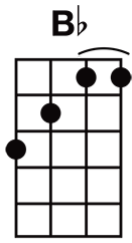

Our friends have grown forgetful and repeat themselves all day

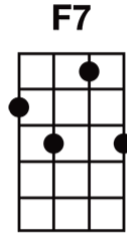

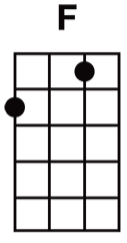

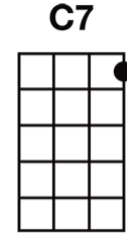

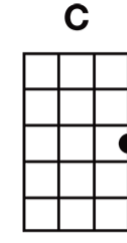

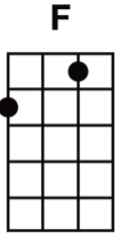

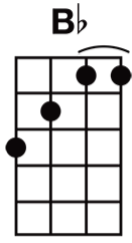

And sometimes they forget what they were gonna say. Uh ... umm...

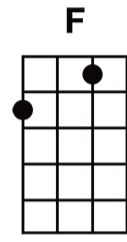

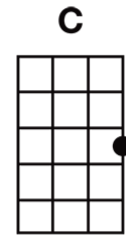

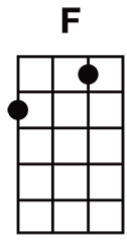

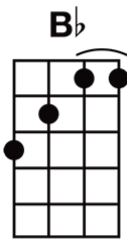

I'm glad that won't happen to us. We're watching our calories, eating kale and asparagus

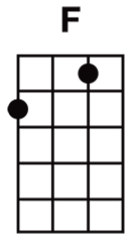

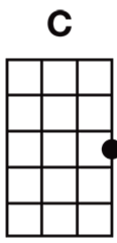

We're doing Pilates, and we don't ever cuss, so that stuff won't happen to us!

I'm glad that won't happen to us. Our figures haven't changed a bit. We still look fabulous!

Our eyesight and our hearing are both utterly robust, so that stuff won't happen to us!
